THE PREFACE

to the Benevolent

R E A D E R.

Courteous Reader,

Having of late compiled a large English and Netherdutch Dictionary, never none before being extant, and that for the accommodation of the Nether-dutches, who are desirous to attaine unto the knowledge and understanding of our English Tongue; much studied by them in these times, both Divines Students and others: I thought my labour and paines not full, but incomplete; unlesse I made it a double Dictionary, in setting the Netherdutch first before our English, and withall have made a Briefe and a Compendious Netherdutch Grammar, that our English, who are affected to the learning of the Netherdutch Speach, may with the more facility and easinesse attaine unto the knowledge and grounds thereof, which may be usefull unto all sorts of men, Especially, considering the Love, Correspondencie, Traffick, and Trading which is betweene our two Nations: and for thy help, furtherance, and Proficiencie in this

(* 3)

Tongue,

T H E P R E F A C E.

Tongue, have undertaken this laborious worke, and so much the more, because there was never none yet extant before. Which if it be acceptable unto the Gentle Reader, I shall then thinke my time well bestowed, wick was and is the principall Marke whereat I aimed. And so rest

Your affectionate and loving Countryman,

HENRY HEXHAM.
